130 YEARS OF MODERN AND CONTEMPORARY ART FROM THE MUSEUM OF MODERN ART, NEW YORK

NGV

NGV INTERNATIONAL | GROUND LEVEL

MoMA at NGV: 130 Years of Modern and Contemporary Art presents a unique survey of masterworks from New York's iconic Museum of Modern Art (MoMA). Consisting of over 200 key works, arranged chronologically into eight thematic sections, it will explore the emergence and development of major movements in art and design from late-nineteenth-century urban and industrial transformation, through to the digital and global present.

The emergence of a 'new art' at the dawn of the twentieth-century will be represented by some of MoMA's earliest acquisitions, including masterworks by Vincent van Gogh, Paul Gauguin and Paul Cézanne. Works by pioneering Cubist and Futurist artists, including Pablo Picasso and Umberto Boccioni, will appear alongside the radically abstracted forms present in works by such artists as Kazimir Malevich and Piet Mondrian, the surreal visual language of paintings by Salvador Dalí and Frida Kahlo; and the spontaneity and tactility advanced in works by Alexander Calder and Jackson Pollock, and other prominent Abstract Expressionists.

Developments in art from the 1960s, from Minimalism through to postmodernism, will be explored with the work of Roy Lichtenstein, Gerhard Richter, Andy Warhol, Lynda Benglis, Sol LeWitt, Jeff Koons, Cindy Sherman and Keith Haring, among others. Significant works of late twentieth-century and early twenty-first-century art, including major pieces by Kara Walker, Rineke Dijkstra, Andreas Gursky, Olafur Eliasson, Huang Yong Ping, Mona Hatoum, El Anatsui and Camille Henrot, will foreground ideas that inform much contemporary art, such as those around cultural and national identity, and mobility in a globalised world.

Throughout, these works of visual art are displayed alongside objects from MoMA's Architecture and Design collection, many of which draw out concerns common to architects, designers and artists – creating a new visual language for the modern era. These include: an architectural model by Le Corbusier, that featured in MoMA's first architecture exhibition in 1932; graphic design, furniture and textiles by artists involved in the influential workshops of the Bauhaus; Tomohiro Nishikado's pioneering computer game Space Invaders (1978); and the original set of 176 emoji – developed by Shigetaka Kurita in 1999 – characters which have since multiplied and become the visual language of the digital age.

Architect for a Day Fri 17 August, 9.30am–2.30pm Levels 8–10 NGV International

This full-day program includes exhibition viewing and an introductory lecture by Simone LeAmon, The Hugh Williamson Curator of Contemporary Design and Architecture, NGV, exploring the work of major architects from the twentieth and twenty-first centuries represented in MoMA at NGV, including Le Corbusier and Zaha Hadid. A practical studio facilitated by practising architect Donna Brzezinski, from BG Architecture, engages students in the initial stages of creating a building, from sources of inspiration to preliminary drawings and building a concept model.

Cost $60 per student

Digital Creatives: Creative Control – Design and build your own working classic video game controller Supported by Principal Partner, Telstra.

Mon–Fri Level 3–8 NGV International

Japan is known for its rich history in arcade culture and video games. This program uses Space Invaders (1978), developed by Tomohiro Nishikado, as inspiration and enables students to discover the creativity in early games culture prior to today's world of virtual and augmented reality, touch screens, smartphones and control pads. Combining simple coding and traditional materials, students design their own, fully functional video game controllers to move a character around on the screen, or even play a game of Space Invaders. This workshop, facilitated by an NGV educator, introduces students to block coding in Scratch and Makey Makey inventor kits. A detailed online resource enables students and teachers to continue developing their skills in the classroom. Maximum 45 participants
Cost $30 per student (full-day program)

NGV KIDS

New York! New York! 9 June – 7 October 2018 NGV International | Ground Level

Coinciding with MoMA at NGV, NGV Kids presents New York! New York!, an installation featuring a panoramic moving montage with images, facts and quotes about New York, children will be immersed in city life. Central to this installation will be an interactive activity focused on the New York experience. Young visitors will be able to build their own miniature versions of the city using toy wooden blocks. The custom-designed sets of blocks will offer a variety of New York building facades, from downtown to uptown, for children to create endless streetscapes.

Cost Free

TEACHING RESOURCES

Visit our website to discover teaching resources to enrich your visit to MoMA at NGV with students. These include pre and post visit activities and innovative strategies for encouraging students to respond creatively to works in the exhibition.

My Modern Art Book

Coinciding with MoMA at NGV, NGV presents a children's book exploring a selection of exhibited works of art and their creators. Pitched at primary-aged readers, children will be introduced to a number of significant artists through full-colour images of the works and engaging texts that will introduce the artist and explore their experimental approaches and ideas. Children will discover different approaches to portraiture, works inspired by the imagination, and new images created in response to a changing world. Available from 9 June in-store and online at designstore.ngv.melbourne
