

A POTION FOR...

NGV

R. Lalique. Wingen-sur-Moder (manufacturer), Camille, scent bottle, designed 1927, manufactured 1928–37, National Gallery of Victoria, Melbourne.

A bottle is made to hold liquids and usually has a lid or cap to stop the liquid from spilling. Some bottles can be made with a vegetable called a gourd or from animal skin. They can also be made of glass, crystal or stone.

The NGV has many different bottles made for different purposes. Some bottles are very old and some are quite new. There are glass bottles from the city of Venice, tiny decorated bottles from China and perfume bottles from France. This glass bottle was made for perfume.

This activity is a playful way to express your feelings about a special person.

SUPPORTED BY

Spotlight● Foundation

Fill the perfume bottle with your kind thoughts.

rainbows

happiness

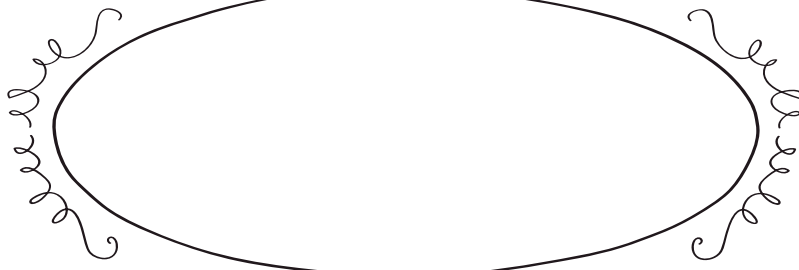

kisses

sparkles

kindness

thoughts

A potion for

This potion is made with:

½ a cup of

A pinch of

A teaspoon of

1 tablespoon of

Mix well and sprinkle on top.

Serve with love

hugs

caring

magic dust

goodness

cuddles